

I just installed matlab for the first time on a brand new laptop running ubuntu 14.04 64bit, it seems I am getting a licence error any idea as to how I can get rid of this error? I am trying to download MATLAB R2014a for a uni library I have to use and when I click on the download matlab button it says "matlab - a licence file? I want to licence it and install it, I am a part of a university campus licence that states that we can download software from the site's source but this is for academic use only and I am not sure what to do? The error message is as follows : The software licence is no longer valid. After installation is complete you have got to copy the cracked.dll +.exe file into Á . Licence Manager Error -9, Programmer Sought, the best programmer áE; When I click on the download matlab button it says "matlab - a licence file? I want to licence it and install it, I am a part of a university campus licence that states that we can download software from the site's source but this is for academic use only and I am not sure what to do? When I first installed matlab i set up a file called license.dat, but when i tried to install matlab for the first time after installation i got an error that said licence.dat. I am on Á . I recently got a new windows 8.1 Pro laptop and went to download MATLAB and ran into a problem. I downloaded the 64bit version and it said that I had two licenses that came with the download. One was a standard license and one was for the net license which would allow me to install MATLAB on up to 5 computers. I went and put in my net license number. It said license manager could not be opened. I then uninstalled the standard license file and I received the same error. I went to the website and went through the security of trying to run the file but I cannot. It states it is a license error. I then went to the community forum and it said I needed a licence file from the first time I installed matlab. I did not have one and that I had to go to the matlab website and send a licence file. I went back to the website and tried to send the licence file but it got sent to
